

To whom it may concern, I have had XM Satellite Radio for a year and a half and I am happy I have it. This is because FM radio has lost touch with the public and plays the same stuff over and over. XM is a breath of fresh air, since they play anything thing and everything. I think our government has more important things to do (examples: economy and the war) then the NAB's petition 04-160. Should not FM radio being trying to make their product better to compete, than making their lobbying arm to get the FCC to go after their competition?
